DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

2. 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, requires the specification to be written in "full, clear, concise, and exact terms." The specification is replete with terms which are not clear, concise and exact. The specification should be revised carefully in order to comply with 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph. Examples of some unclear, inexact or verbose terms used in the specification are: Pg. 5, line 8, "step 7", should be "stem 7"; pg. 7, line 6, "nozzle body 7", should be "nozzle body 12"; Pg.6, line 5, "lower receiving blades 32", should be "lower receiving blades 31".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. In line 12, "a coil" has confusing antecedent basis in line 9 with "a coil" it is unclear if second recitation is a double inclusion from line 9.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ouyang et al. (7,195,134).

7. The Ouyang et al. reference discloses a subdivided fixed amount distributing apparatus having an outer sleeve (2) configured to so as to be securable to a top of the aerosol container (20), a stem (22) with a borehole; a nozzle body (see fig.1); a coil spring (143), a fixed amount injection valve (inside valve stem); a push body (144); an upper sleeve (146) having a lower end secured to the outer sleeve; lower receiving blades (148); a flat portion (flat surface of blades; see fig 2); a fitting piece (shorter downward protrusions of 144; see fig.2); upper receiving blades (151); a pushing projection (longer downward protrusions of 144; see fig.2) at an upper surface of the pushing body to be in pressurized contact with a user; and wherein the pushing projection (longer downward protrusions of 144; see fig.2) of the pushing body (144) is formed in coupling with the fitting piece (shorter downward protrusions of 144; see fig.2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

8. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

9. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ouyang et al. (7,195,134).

10. Having the push body with pushing projection and the fitting piece formed separately is a design choice based upon the needs of the consumer that will be operating the apparatus. Whether the pushing projection and the fitting piece are formed separately or coupled together does not affect the utility of the apparatus. Thus having the push body with pushing projection and the fitting piece formed separately fails to be patentably define over the prior art.

Conclusion

11. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The Lu et al. (2006/0060192; 7,543,582), Lee et al. (2005/0011515), Eckert (7,156,258), Blacker et al. (6,435,372; 6,161,724; 7,575,130), Wass et al. (5,349,945) are other types of subdivided fixed amount distributing apparatuses.
